What Was I Made For?

Why am I here on this earth? Why did God create me? What's my purpose? These questions often burn in our students' minds. God created each of us with a distinct purpose, but many students don't know that purpose. This four-week series biblically unpacks the truth we see throughout church history's confessions of faith: "The chief end of man is to glorify God and enjoy Him forever!"

Outside These Walls

As Christians, Jesus gave us instruction to go preach the gospel and disciple others. This call of the Great Commission is a universal call for all believers, but many of our students are discouraged by the "walls" they face in going. In this five week series, we talk through the different walls that might keep us from sharing our faith and discipling others.

Don't Believe The Storm

Elijah was suicidal. David was depressed. Moses was anxious. Paul was alone in prison... but God set them free. He used their mess and made it into a message. God can turn your worst seasons around when you choose to worship Him in the middle of the storm. In this four-week series, we bring taboo topics like suicide and mental health into the light allowing students to find freedom in Christ.

Summer Soundtrack – 2024

Music is powerful. It connects us to others, to our emotions, and even to God! Our students engage with music in pop culture daily. We believe that meaningful discussions around Christ and a Biblical worldview are critical. There is no better place to discuss the Christian worldview than in contrast with the culture of the world's music. This four-week series discusses some of the hottest songs in pop culture and draws out Biblical truth for discussion from their lyrics.

Sorry, Not Sorry

In a world of skepticism and post-modern culture, students are desperate for answers to the hard questions about their faith. Things like: “Is God real?”, “How do I know that the Bible is accurate?” or “How do I defend my faith to others?” In this series on apologetics, we tackle some of the big questions to help students learn how to understand and defend their faith well.
